Wallpaper Collection
Marianne has a fascination with print and its translation into her materials, her eyes often drawn to any subtle and unique imperfections. Inspiration comes instinctively to Marianne. Every first idea is intuitively developed in print then transferred to tile with each new iteration often a refinement of the last.

Each wallpaper is crafted from a photographic translation of the hand made tiles direct to high quality non-woven 180gsm coated paper.

Smink Things also offers a bespoke commission and special design service. Please get in touch to talk through your project and requirements.
One of Smink Things most popular ranges, it explores an abstract world of industrial architecture in shape and colour. Inspired by L.S Lowry’s city vistas; Marianne’s Dutch eyes restore a feeling of his art in a contemporary palette. The wallpaper recreates the gentle, undulating and irregular hues of glaze from the tiles in a pattern that softly breaks and reimagines the city landscape.

There is something unexpected in the contrast of the bold sharp circle on its loosely painted background. Sometimes stark and loud, sometimes softly hidden in a background glaze. The Quarter Circle changes constantly through this paper in hues of muted blues and reds.

The pattern is placed in a random and abstract formation for this paper. Subtle greys and muted neutrals are offset with the soft organic circles, which tessellate across this contemporary design.

Inspired by the largest tiling project ever undertaken in Britain, the London Underground. By breaking it down to just a handful of the iconic underground tile colours and rethinking their patterns, the Going Overground design was borne. The wallpaper design tessellates the pattern established in tile, regaining reference to the hard, urban environments that inspired it. Cool greys, browns and black cluster in the triangular prints.
